Detective Jason Degagne with the Tampa Police Department approached and presented the case of a deceptive and untruthful officer. Detective Jason Degagne provided the CRB with detailed information involving an officer who responded to a call at a convenience store on January 4, 2022. The officer arrived on scene, asked the subject several times to leave the store at the request of the store manager. During that time, the officer never attempted to identify the suspect to create a trespass warning, and listed in his call notes that the subject walked away before he was able to obtain his name to issue a warning. On January 22, 2022, the officer was dispatched to a suspicious person call three times. Dispatched stated that they were holding a call for the first time. Two different officers volunteered to answer the call since the original officer who was dispatched was non-responsive. The original officer who was initially dispatched came over the radio, cancelled both unit officers, and advised that he would respond; however, the officer never showed up. Then the officer placed himself at the scene using his computer and cleared the call with no call notes; additionally, there was no Body Worn Camera (BWC) footage relating to the call. Later, the officer was dispatched a second time to the same call. When the officer arrived on scene, he asked dispatch for the subject's most recent location. The officer immediately had a visual of the subject, and advised dispatch that he was in contact with the subject. Based on BWC footage when the officer made the following statement "he had a visual and was in contact with the subject" to dispatch, subject had already walked by the officer; therefore, the BWC was not able to capture footage of the conversation. Again, the officer was dispatched a third time, to the same location to assist a detective with a call. While the officer was working on the call, his supervisor requested that he call him to provide feedback regarding the response to the call. At that time, it had been determined that the officer failed to properly document previous incidents. On January 31, 2022, the officer was relieved of his duties while being under investigation. After the investigation, the officer was terminated on June 28, 2022, as it was determined that he had been deceptive and untruthful.

Discussion took place amongst members and Detective Degagne, regarding the seriousness of the officer's violations, investigation history and the delayed follow-up process from the department. Detective Degagne stated due to the investigations being conducted at the same time, it caused the dispositions to line-up close together, which caused the follow-up process to lag.

Discussion took place amongst members and Detective Degagne, regarding the police terminology which was written in the report and what it meant. Detective Degagne provided feedback and explanation as to each term.
